

Photo Courtesy of Wyoming State Archives

Many Native American tribes called the Black Hills home. In their historic timeline the Lakota people were the most recent to claim the lands. Tribes were nomadic and had no way to take water with them. They sought areas along creeks to set up camp, hunt, and have water for themselves and their animals. Wander the Lakota Trail. Imagine a serene teepee village along the Sundance Creek that winds through SWRP.

1.1 MILES
SKILL 